AS18/02: Interim accreditation for newly established health service organisations

PURPOSE:

To describe arrangements for accreditation of newly established health service organisations applying for interim accreditation to the National Safety and Quality Health Service (NSQHS) Standards.

ISSUE:

The Private Health Insurance (Benefit Requirements) Amendment Rules 2012 (No. 10) (the Benefit Requirements Amendment Rules) and the Private Health Insurance (Accreditation) Amendment Rules 2012 (No. 2) (the Accreditation Amendment Rules) were registered on the Federal Register of Legislative Instruments (FRLI) on 2 January 2013 and commenced on 3 January 2013 relating to the requirements to access private health insurance funding.

The purpose of these Amendment Rules is to make minor technical changes in light of the NSQHS Standards developed by the Australian Commission on Safety and Quality in Health Care (the Commission) which commenced from 1 January 2013.

Further information is available in the Australian Government Department of Health private health insurance circulars available at:

PHI 89/12 \(http://www.health.gov.au/internet/main/publishing.nsf/Content/health-phicirculars2012-89\)

PHI 07/13 \(http://www.health.gov.au/internet/main/publishing.nsf/Content/health-phicirculars2013-07\).

In June 2018, the Commission released the National Safety and Quality Health Service Standards (second edition) Guide to Interim Accreditation to provide guidance for health service organisations commencing operation and seeking accreditation. It also serves as a reference for accrediting agencies when assessing new organisations.

The document describes each of the 148 actions in the NSQHS Standards stating their applicability or otherwise. Some actions have been prescribed. This occurs for actions where patients or patient information is required that may not yet be available because the operation is just commencing, but should be undertaken during the 12 month period of interim accreditation.

Interim accreditation for a newly established health service organisation, as described in this document, satisfies the requirement for accreditation to the NSQHS Standards for the purpose of achieving second-tier default benefit eligibility under the Private Health Insurance (Benefit Requirements) Rules 2011.

REQUIREMENTS:

Accrediting agencies are to use the document National Safety and Quality Health Service Standards (second edition) Guide to Interim Accreditation to assess new health service organisations that have not previously provided patient care. This does not include health service organisations relocating to new facilities or existing health service organisations commencing a new service.

Newly established health service organisations can only be assessed following commencement of service provision, and should be assessed within 10 working days from the commencement of service provision.

The newly established health service organisation may apply to their accrediting agencies for not applicable status of an action where the action is inappropriate in the context of their service. Accrediting agencies should consider Advisory AS18/01 Advice on not applicable actions when granting approval of non-applicable actions.

Organisations that meet the specified requirements for new health services accreditation are to be awarded interim accreditation and the wording on certificates is to reflect the interim status.

Health service organisations with interim accreditation are to undertake an accreditation review within 12 months of the initial assessment and accrediting agencies are to have completed the processes of assessment and awarding accreditation (where eligible) within 18 months.
