AS18/01: Advice on not applicable actions

PURPOSE:

To clarify not applicable actions for hospitals, day procedure services, multi-purpose services, bush nursing services, patient transport services and public dental services.

ISSUE:

In some exceptional circumstances, actions from the NSQHS Standards may not be applicable to a health service organisation. The Commission has issued this advisory to ensure the consistent application of not applicable status to actions within the NSQHS Standards.

REQUIREMENTS:

The attached summary tables detail the actions which in exceptional circumstances may be awarded not applicable rating, subject to supporting evidence being provided by the health service organisation.

Where a health service organisation considers that an action is not applicable, it should submit an application for not applicable status to its accrediting agency well in advance of the assessment. All applications should provide evidence that there is little or no risk of patient harm in relation to the action(s) in the submission. Accrediting agencies are to provide an initial determination of the health service organisation's submission before undertaking the scheduled assessment. At assessment, assessors are to verify that the decision to award these actions not applicable status is justified.

Accrediting agencies are required to refer to these tables when considering applications from health service organisations for non-applicability of actions within the NSQHS Standards.

In large organisations, there may be specific units or departments where an action does not apply, while remaining applicable elsewhere in the organisation. For example, Action 3.10 regarding invasive devices may not be relevant in a sleep lab or rehabilitation unit. In these cases, the action will apply for the health service organisation but is not required to be assessed for units where it is demonstrated as not applicable.

Infrequent application of an action, such as Action 3.4 Surveillance strategies for antimicrobial use for patient transport services or Action 7.6 Prescribing and administering blood and blood products, is not sufficient reason for awarding not applicable status. Where an action is infrequently applied, strategies to implement the action are likely to be a simple monitoring and review process by the health service organisation.

Where there is a dispute concerning an award of not applicable status that is not resolved following discussions between the health service organisation and the accrediting agency, application can be made by either the accrediting agency or health service organisations to the Commission for mediation.

Bush nursing services

Bush nursing services are characterised as being located in geographically isolated or small rural communities. They are managed by the Registered Nurse Manager and governed by a voluntary committee of management, which is elected by members at the Annual General Meeting. In each community with a bush nursing service, it is the sole local public provider of services, that may include primary health care, home-based nursing and personal care, social support groups, health screening and education, accident and trauma stabilisation (Remote Area Nurse) and have visiting medical and allied health practitioners. In Victoria, bush nursing service is a recognisable service provider.
